

We are HOSTING a remote leadership experience of a lifetime!

For coaching leaders in all education sectors who are seeking to deepen and revitalise their leadership tool kit whilst exploring a culture that has existed for over 50,000 years.

During the 6 days we will connect “IN, ON and WITH Country”, immersing ourselves in traditional culture and identity, ancient language and dreaming stories.

Come with open hearts and minds for deep experiential learning and critical reflection on your leadership and coaching practice through the metaphor and symbols abounding in our remote and ancient environment.

Relationships are at the core of our life and work – this will be a time to make new connections, listen and share leadership stories and challenges, coach and be coached, learn together in a new space – an exquisite opportunity to recharge, renew and refocus!

Connecting with your inner self, with other participants, with local elders and families of different Yolju clans, and with nature through metaphor aims to replenish your self-awareness, resilience and leadership sustainability – to different ways of knowing and being!

Your own creativity will come to the forefront of your leadership practice and professional learning to host and lead genuine conversations about practice in a variety of approaches. Your reference is Coaching Leadership (Second Edition) (2016).

What did leaders say from our previous Retreats?

‘Very much what I needed to re-ignite my passion for Indigenous education, equity and reconciliation...the insights round these issues are playing on my mind especially sustainability.’

‘Precious time to travel inwards as well as connect beyond my boundaries.’

‘This has made me reflect on what values I hold as a leader and more importantly what my values look like and what future development I will do now.’

‘Learning now, from the past, to create a better future.’

‘I can speak so positively to the framing of the experience, the content, the purposeful coaching and networking are uplifting and perspective shifting.’
