How a referral agreement works:

Sporting clubs are famous for bringing people from diverse backgrounds together with a shared passion that is hard to find anywhere else. Being a part of that community and helping its member's face their future with confidence has been part of the Gallagher Way for over 90 years.

One way that we can help sports clubs is through a referral agreement. This means that if a sports club refers one of its members to Gallagher, and they choose to work with us, we'll return a percentage of any commission earned back to the club for it to reinvest in its operation.

1

Club refers its members/partners/players to designated contact at Gallagher.

2

Gallagher works with the referral to see if they're able to improve their current insurance program and risk management.

3

If the referral decides to choose Gallagher, a percentage of any commission received is returned to the club to support its activities.
