

Murray

Murray suffered with gum disease and a large amount of decay across his front teeth, which extended into the nerve of one tooth on the upper left. To restore Murray's teeth back to health and help to remove the sensitivity he was suffering with, we removed all areas of decay, performed a root canal therapy followed by a ceramic crown on the front tooth, then restored the remaining areas of decay with composite resin. Murray is now smiling again and pain free.